Anthropology

Yoruba: Drum Poetry (CD Included) / Mobolanle & Ebunoluwa Sotunsa
London: Stillwatersstudios, 2009
viii. 198p. ; 21cm.
ISBN-10: 9780749415
$ 22.00

Yoruba Drum Poetry concentrates on the poetry rather than the music of the talking drum. It serves as a critical resource book by providing invaluable transcriptions and literary analysis of a rich variety of Yoruba drum texts in diverse contexts. By examining the stylistic and aesthetic uniqueness which characterize drum poetry, it fills a critical gap, thereby making an important contribution to African oral literatures. The Summary/Key points and Research/ Study questions at the end of each chapter enhance study and teaching. Furthermore, the documentary on CD which accompanies the book provides concrete visual examples of drum poetry performances.

In the oil rich Niger Delta, where kidnapping of oil workers is routine, a kidnapping goes awry and four friends – a ruthless career-militant, an amoral oil company executive, a gentle eco-warrior and a prodigal lawyer face the consequences.

Their coming of age experiences in this volatile region, tests their loyalties and beliefs; and in a bleak land with a broken moral compass, friendship is redefined.

This novel has beamed light on pre-independence Nigeria, with an uncommon eye on details. It is revealing in its description of the ways of life and culture of the people, as wars mingled with love, tearing families apart. It depicts the struggles and pain of the Nigerian woman; while acknowledging her legendary strength and courage.

The Dawn of Full Moon is a courageous drama celebrating womanhood. Daalu is abused sexually, maltreated and manipulated by Ikedi. Though the inhumanity of men to the female gender is highlighted in this play, the overriding theme of resilience and love with a happy ending elevates this work beyond the well-travelled road of feminism and women liberation.

JP Clark: A Voyage is the definitive biography of Clark by Femi Osofisan, himself one of Nigeria's most accomplished playwrights. It chronicles the life and career of the man John Pepper Clark-Bekederemo, from his remarkable childhood to his emergence in the 60s among the best and brightest of Nigerian literature. For the first time, JP breaks his silence about the controversial position he took during Nigeria's Civil War and discusses his relationship with Soyinka and Achebe.

Nigeria: Wale Adebawu, 2010
xxii. 462p. ; 23cm.
ISBN-13: 9789789121144
$ 90.00

A Paradise for Maggots chronicles the story of Nuhu Ribadu, arguably Africa's most courageous and most successful anti-corruption czar. It places the anti-graft exploits of Ribadu on a larger canvass of nationhood in a country in which public office is regarded as an 'eatery'. This revealing and riveting narrative of one of Africa's biggest cesspits of graft will leave the reader gasping for breath, shocked at how a country with abundant resources, human and material, was turned into the laughing stock of the entire world by its thieving elite. The reader will also be inspired by one man's dangerous battle to reverse that revolting history.

In five active decades of tireless and committed social engagement, no subject matter has been too controversial or taboo for Wole Soyinka, which makes his essays and articles among the most widely read.

The themes of the series vary literally from the sublime to the ridiculous, from national foibles to the tragic face of nation existence, from citizens derelictions and delinquencies to government criminalities and betrayals of trust, from the celebration of life and other eulogies to lamentations.
