"One of the most enduring myths on the Nigerian Femme Fatale - mammy-water, 'winch' or husband-snatcher - has to do with the cooking of fish stew ...A woman can do what she likes with a man when she knows how to satisfy his appetite for food." Longthroat Memoirs presents a sumptuous menu of essays about Nigerian food, lovingly presented by the nation's top epicurean writer. As well as a mouth-watering appraisal of the cultural politics and erotics of Nigerian cuisine, it is also a series of love letters to the Nigerian palate. From innovations in soup, fish as aphrodisiac and the powerful seductions of the yam, Longthroat Memoirs examines the complexities, the peculiarities, the meticulousness, and the tactility of Nigerian food. Nigeria has a strong culture of oral storytelling, of myth creation, of imaginative traversing of worlds. Longthroat Memoirs collates some of those stories into an irresistible soup-pot, expressed in the flawless love language of appetite and nourishment. A sensuous testament on why, when and how Nigerians eat the food they love to eat; this book is a welcome addition to the global dining table of ideas

The Family Law Reports of Nigeria (FLRN), other than dissolution of marriages, addresses issues that pertain to inheritance; child custody; property and land rights including the coverage of the Islamic Family and Islamic marriage, dissolution and inheritance which is seldom seen in mainstream law reports and is of great importance.

The law report covers all the relevant landmark judgments of the commendable Nigerian Judiciary in this area. The alphabetical arrangement of the subject-matter and hosting of all decisions and principles related thereto under the headings, legal maxims and cross-references to other law reports are provided for easy reference. The terms and principles are neatly arranged in the glossary thus making the search quick and convenient.

The Family Law Report of Nigeria would not only be beneficial in Nigeria, but also will be immensely helpful for other Nations and people in the Commonwealth and the World as a whole.
