Tour Nigeria is the virtual retelling of Nigeria story, captured by a passionate and award winning photographer, whose desire to showcase the history, greatness and rich culture of Nigeria for a world beyond the lens.

This pictorial journey stirs the mind into appreciating the landscape, monuments and the history of the most populous Black Country on earth. Much more compelling is the clarity of pictures, historical facts, creative design and presentation.

Sand, Sun and Surprises : A Nigerian Expatriate in the Middle East : A Memoir / E S Akpata

Lagos: Narrative Landscape Press (Prima), 2018

xvi, 316p.

Includes Index

9789785610710

$ 65.00 / PB

506gm.

Part travelogue, part insightful memoir, Sand, Sun and Surprises memorialises the decades that Prof ES Akpata spent living and working as a Nigerian expatriate in oil-rich Middle East. A top scholar in the field of dental surgery, he leaves Nigeria during the recession of the 1980s to take up, initially, a temporary job in the region, but ends up spending twenty-three years of academic activities in Saudi Arabia and Kuwait. Sand, Sun and Surprises demystifies the culture of the Arab world; it is a fascinating take, filled with moments of humour--like the one time when he thinks his car is stolen in Kuwait, and after searching for hours, finds it in the same spot he left it. The author describes a region transformed from harsh desert conditions to gleaming cities made of glass and steel, elegant buildings, and five-star hotels and restaurants; changes that seemed to have occurred in an instant. This is a practical book for those who wish to understand the Middle East or visit the region for work or leisure.

- How can Nigeria overcome its leadership capital deficit?
- How can women get equality in the areas of: access to education, access to finance, marital protection rights, violence, and the poor ratios of representation in political and corporate leadership in Nigeria?
- Will the youths finally rise up and take their place at the driving wheel on our national journey into the future?
- How can we successfully reduce poverty and unemployment?
- What is the vision of Diaspora Engagement?
- How can we pursue a vibrant foreign policy?
- Can the 'Office of the Citizen' do its patriotic duty?
- How does governance in Nigeria reduce waste and inefficiency?
- What and who can save Nigeria?

If any country needs a bold vision of how to turn its under-achieved potential into reality, it is Nigeria. Few are more equipped and prepared to offer such a roadmap as Kingsley Moghalu. Build, Innovate and Grow (BIG) covers a wide range of issues... informed both by Kingsley's worldview and by an impressive, versatile career across multiple domains... This is a book whose time has come – a BIG vision for our country indeed.

A Story of Heroes and Epics: The History of Football in Nigeria tells the hugely significant story of the rise of football in colonial Nigeria as a unifying cultural force in the country. The origins of the game in Nigeria, the history of organised football, the institutions that produced the early football stars, the first Nigerian players to play abroad, Nigeria's first international matches, the earliest rivalries and narratives on football's incursion into the southern and northern regions, are some of the subjects that form the basis of this incredible social history of Nigeria.

This book discusses the laws of select subject matters in the Nigerian oil and gas industry through the lens of judicial interpretations. It is a constellation of cases on oil and gas law, which seem to be lost in pages of oil and gas texts and law reports. It also provides commentaries that aid the understanding of the subject areas and of the decisions reached by the courts. Considering the absence of Nigerian judicial authorities on some of the issues discussed in this book, resort was made to include cases of foreign oil and gas jurisdictions, mostly the United States and the United Kingdom. While these foreign cases are not binding on Nigerian courts, the current law in Nigeria is that these cases would be resorted to where the issues and laws decided in those foreign cases are similar.

As cybercrimes reach unprecedented level and sophistication, with internet criminals becoming more effective than ever, coupled with the fact that all aspects of human activities are increasingly being automated and online—the restaurants where we eat, the cars we drive, the electricity plants that power our cities, the military installations that protect our respective territories, etc. Studying cyber criminology has all the more become indispensable. The book, Cyber Criminology and Technology-Assisted Crime Control: A Reader, comes handy in this respect. The contributors demonstrate their deep understanding of different aspects of the menace of cybercrimes and contemporary issues around them. It attempts lucid explanations of concepts; manifestations and various forms of cybercrimes.

Themes on Conflict of Laws takes its value and relevance in being the first of its kind in common Law Black Africa and particularly for being the work of a distinguished African scholar in the field of conflict of laws. As the author has himself observed recent British statutes have been so drafted as to provide for their spatial application and thus gradually replacing the existing out-dated and to a certain extent, inconvenient common law rules. These statutes are understandably not applicable in common law Africa even though a large proportion of the English textbooks on the subject are devoted to the discussion of such statutes. Consequently, the African students, lawyers and judges are left with either the older edition of the relevant works which are in any case out of print, or the later editions which contain very little that are relevant to the laws of their countries. It is this vacuum that this book has to a large extent, enviably filled in respect of the topics discussed. It's therefore an indispensable companion to students, lawyers and judges on the subject of conflict of laws.

This book is an in-depth study and analysis of the concept of standardization and quality regulation and quality regulation as a legal instrument for the development of Africa. It shows how standardization facilitates trade and economic integration into the global economy as well as the protection of African consumers. The book discloses that whilst standardization is pivotal to the sustainable economic growth of Africa, law and legislation are crucial in driving standardization and quality regulation trends on the African continent. The work advocates for a coherent and dynamic legal framework for standardization and regulatory activities in Africa with a view to harmonizing common rules, regulations, and practices that could facilitate cooperation and coordination of trade-related economic activities.

Professor Darah turned seventy on Wednesday November 22, 2017 and to celebrate his very productive career, his colleagues and many of those he has mentored thought it appropriate to mark his official exit from the university in a dignified way by commissioning for publication, in the now acceptable festschrift tradition, the highly compelling and outstanding collection of essays titled: Scholarship and Commitment: Essays in Honour of G.G. Darah. The book is a ground-breaking collection of essays; some are couched as tributes to the ebullient celebrant, there are others on more serious discourses in the areas of literary theories and criticism, language and linguistics, popular literature and politics, the African woman, identity and contemporary realities, oral literature, the news media and cultural studies. The essays, on their own, attest to the vivacity and liveliness as well as the encouraging state of health of publishing in the Nigerian academia, which in this collection alone, parades forty-two essays in different fields or discourses.

Lola Akande's The City in the African Novel: A Thematic Rendering of Urban Spaces undertakes a critical analysis of sixteen African novels that she believes are representative of city trends. Beginning with an introduction that discusses why and how the city is an important phenomenon in literature, the problematic relationship between the city and the African novel, she goes on to examine how the African city emerges from villagisation into urbanity. Her careful and definitive analyses of the general and peculiar traits of African cities; the real impact of urban life on city dwellers; how earlier and recent novelists portray the city; how literature influences the way people conduct themselves in the city while the behaviour of people in the city also influences what comes out as literature are done against the background of the symbolisation of the African city as emblematic of the inchoate African modernities where citizens' lives are wracked with fruitless struggle. She then focuses on the contributions of female writers to the study of the city by critically assessing the extent to which city life has influenced female writers differently from their male counterparts.

A gripping story of 4 ordinary yet courageous women, taking a determined journey from bitter experiences to finding themselves. Vera thought marriage would be an escape from embarrassing complications. It turned out she was gravely mistaken. Mrs. Fenwa has managed to keep the inhuman treatment she received in the first few years of marriage from poisoning her life until her husband suddenly resurfaces. Adesola; respectable and devout, it would seem the only problem Adesola could not solve was hers. Erin; beautiful, glib and gullible, is set to find out that all her definitions of love are wrong. These four women teach at the Orange High School but they are to share much more in common as they support one another on the journey to find answers.

Umuahia, Nigeria. Chinonso, a young poultry farmer, sees a woman attempting to jump to her death from a highway bridge. Horrified by her recklessness, Chinonso joins her on the roadside and hurls two of his most prized chickens into the water below to demonstrate the severity of the fall. The woman, Ndali, is moved by his sacrifice. Bonded by this strange night on the bridge, Chinonso and Ndali fall in love. But Ndali is from a wealthy family, and when her parents object to the union because Chinonso is uneducated, he sells most of his possessions to attend university in Cyprus. Once in Cyprus, Chinonso discovers that all is not what it seems. Furious at a world which continues to relegate him to the sidelines, Chinonso gets further and further away from his dream, from Ndali and the place he called home.

In this contemporary twist on Milton, Dante and Homer written in the mythic style of the Igbo literary tradition, Chigozie Obioma weaves a heart-wrenching epic about the tension between destiny and determination.

Thuli, Onah and Deji are inseparable friends but a divine-induced chain of events ensues, resulting in Onah's departure for Belgium, Thuli's return to South Africa, her home country, and Deji's transformation into a superhero called Superwind, endowed with special powers to combat evil in Negerna. Their experiences at the Idare cave, gives prophetic insight to a series of events that changed the world, bringing Africa to the fore of the global development. The story of legend of the lost captures the "end of the world" theory which has been a recurring subject for both science and religion. Virtual reality, technology and environmental degradation have made the concept more than an apocalypse. It is prophecy that plays out through a natural process of regeneration. Nature is divine providence and always in symmetry with the will of God. Eventually, the biblical value of faith remains.

Everyone says that Ese is the most beautiful woman in the region, but a fool. A young widow, she lives in a village, where the crops grow tall and the people are ruled over by a Chief on a white horse. She married for love, but now her husband is dead, leaving her with nothing but a market stall and a young son to feed.

When the Chief knocks on Ese's door demanding that she marry again, as the laws of the land dictate she must, Ese is a fool once more. There is a high price for breaking the law, and an even greater cost for breaking the heart of a Chief. Ese will face the wrath of gods and men in the fight to preserve her heart, to keep her son and to right centuries of wrongs. She will change the lives of many on the road to freedom, and she will face the greatest pain a mother ever can.

Wake Me When I'm Gone is a story of curses broken and lives remade, of great tragedy and incredible rebirth. In this, his second novel, Nigerian writer Odafé Atogun unfolds a world rich with tradition and folklore, a world filled with incredible people of remarkable strength, a world that is changing fast

Two women meet on a bus heading for Lagos – one to continue her poor-paying job as a prostitute, and the other to visit a long-distance boyfriend. Both women discover that they share an uncanny resemblance and become fast friends. But before the end of that day, there will be a fatal crash. One woman will die and the other – following a case of mistaken identity – will impersonate her. Gently navigating the chasm between the lives of the oblivious rich and desperate poor, Impostor Alert! is a finely wrought tale about grief, forgiveness and redemption.

A desperate doctor commits murder to appease his wife. A drug-dealing family comes undone following a police raid. A young foreign-educated graduate, brimming with patriotic zest, returns to Nigeria to help rebuild her country, but quickly becomes disillusioned as the hassle and unpredictability of Lagos overwhelm her. And in jaunty, pointed observations, “Two-Way Streets” collects and reflects on the motifs of typical Lagos living. The stories in this anthology take on the beautiful, clustered Lagos with aplomb and all-knowing authority, the characters’ lives coming together to weave a rich tapestry of a city that is at once startling in its grime and entertaining in its glory.

NIGERIA, AFRICA'S MOST POPULOUS NATION, OFFERS AS MANY opportunities as challenges. She is a regional power house. She has a dynamic political system, a robust economy, a thriving workforce, and of course natural resources, of which, oil is a primary resource. However, despite these, she is dogged by the age old problems of wastage, poor management, graft and corruption. This results in tens of millions of its citizens living below or just on the poverty line. Even though a major OPEC producer, she can barely provide steady electricity throughout the country. Dr. Christian Onwudiwe does more than ask the hard questions. He digs deep and traces the root of these problems, analyzes them objectively, like the expert he is, and most importantly offers suggestions on the way forward for Nigeria.

In the last decade, Nigeria has risen to become one of the most active operational theatre of global Islamist Jihad and the epicenter of homegrown terrorism in the West Africa sub region. This book undertakes a study of the origins of radicalization and terrorism, using plausible research methods to underscore the ideological connection between the Nigerian war against homegrown terror and the ongoing global Islamist jihad. It also proffered practical field proven far-reaching solutions and guide for decision-makers and security agencies on how to deal with evolving 21st Century security threats where the enemy now resides within. It talks about a critical aspect of counter terrorism that is often overlooked by countries confronting the menace, and that is, the impact of the belligerent rogue states who provide ideological and operational support for terrorist organizations around the world including here in Nigeria. The book ends by excogitating potential early warning signs and future lines of conflict and how to counter them. It is without question a compendium on terrorism and therefore, a must read.

The last two years (2013-2015) of the Jonathan Administration exemplified the rudderless situation that a government of 'business as usual' finds itself. The Peoples Democratic Party had no systematic or clear programme except uncoordinated and ill-digested clichés that were ineffectual for a country in a dire need of direction. President Goodluck Ebele Azikiwe Jonathan was the scapegoat of past political neglect and collective political inattention of Nigerians.

In 2015 fifteen million Nigerians voted for “Change”, choosing the All Progressives Congress as the vehicle and its flag bearer, retired General Muhammadu Buhari, as the spearhead to bring about a significant turnaround in the country’s affairs. It was quite the left field choice: Buhari had ruled the country as a Military Head of State in the mid-eighties without distinction and had lost his bid for the Nigerian Presidency on three previous occasions. This time however, he swept to power on a wave emotion, based on disappointment in the incumbent Goodluck Jonathan. Buhari promised to deliver on three pillars, to fight corruption, fix the economy and to put an end to insecurity issues in the country, particularly the war with Boko Haram. This book looks at the events of the Buhari presidency leading up to the 2019 general elections as they happened in real time, focusing on actions, inactions and reactions by Buhari and his administration, through the lens of these 3 pillars. The book has been put together based on a series of articles written over the period in question and has been released just ahead of the 2019 Presidential elections to provide a basis for assessment by the people, to enable an informed decision.

This book is an engaging narrative on the asymmetric character of Nigeria-US relations. Exploring the economics and politics of power, the book provides an elixir for the understanding of the historical and contemporary interactions between two countries with disparate power elements. Being the state with massive advantage in the relationship, the United States craves for nothing more than subservience from its client partner. It is essential reading for students of academics with research interests in Nigeria and the United States.

Since the late sage Obafemi Awolowo wrote his Path to Nigerian Freedom or even before, Nigerians have yearned for a better country and many politicians have promised to take Nigeria to the promised land. In 2015, the bandwagon of populism was tagged CHANGE. Notwithstanding the fact that it was not different in the nature of the promises or the way it was sold, many Nigerians followed the wagon especially youths. Many have since voiced their regrets about that decision to believe in the possibility of Nigeria achieving its massive potential via that vehicle. How have we as a country been eluded of a true team of leaders who are bent on putting us on this path to freedom? Is the CHANGE from this Nigeria to a better one so elusive that we cannot seem to get on that path after 57 years of independence? Even after the late sage Chinua Achebe wrote the trouble with Nigeria identifying what the trouble is, why have we not been able to end these troubles? The Pragmatics of real CHANGE aspires to provide answers to these questions and provide suggestions as to how we can at least get on this path to the 'promised land'.

Faith and Governance: Politics and Spirituality in Nation-Building is a collection of published articles on the twin subject of faith and governance. The book is divided into three parts. The first part under the heading, Cultivating Spiritual Intelligence contains articles on some dangerous doctrinal positions in the Church and the need for spiritual awareness in this season. The second part, under the title, Christianity and Nation-Building is made up articles that speak to Christianity in Nigeria and the role the Church is meant to play in nation-building. The third part, Governance et'al, contains thoughts on a number of governance issues in Nigeria and across the globe such as corruption, global migration, brexit etc.
