The playwright, poet, essayist, novelist, and Nobel Laureate Wole Soyinka is also a longtime art collector. This book of essays offers a glimpse into the motivations of the collector, as well as a highly personal look at the politics of aesthetics and collecting. Detailing moments of first encounter with objects that drew him in and continue to affect him, Soyinka describes a world of mortals, muses, and deities that imbue the artworks with history and meaning. Beyond Aesthetics is a passionate discussion of the role of identity, tradition, and originality in making, collecting, and exhibiting African art today. Soyinka considers objects that have stirred controversy, and he decries dogmatic efforts—whether colonial or religious—to suppress Africa’s artistic traditions. By turns poetic, provocative, and humorous, Soyinka affirms the power of collecting to reclaim tradition. He urges African artists, filmmakers, collectors, and curators to engage with their aesthetic and cultural histories.

The Dream : Pursuing The Black Renaissance Through The Murky Waters of Nigerian Politics : Memoirs / Femi Okurounmu

Ibadan: Bookcraft, 2019

xxxii, 672p.

Includes Index

9789785602210

$ 90.00 / PB

1010gm.

The book's subtitle, "Pursuing The Renaissance Through The Murky Waters of Nigerian Politics", foregrounds its structural and thematic import as that which is a mix of the national and the personal.

The Foreword was written by an expert in Yoruba history and politics, Professor Stephen Adebajji Akintoye, while the author's Prologue hints that his book is a fine mix of the personal history of a Nigerian and that of his country's politics.

The story of the author's roots and birth, first of all, highlights the simple, medical explanation for hitherto ravaging, mystical infant mortality. He was the fourth, yet the oldest surviving child of his father.

It also highlights his humble beginning as the son of a roadside watch repairer. The author's educational journey through primary schools in Abeokuta, to Government College Ibadan, and later to Harvard and MIT in the USA, are comprehensively captured in the first three chapters of the book.

Funmilayo Ransome-Kuti was a Nigerian activist who fought for suffrage and equal rights for her countrywomen long before the second wave of the women's movement in the United States. Her involvement in international women's organizations led her to travel the world in the period following World War II. She championed the causes of the poor and downtrodden of both sexes as she joined the anticolonial movement struggling for Nigeria's independence.

For Women and the Nation is the story of this courageous woman. One of a handful of full-length biographies of African women, let alone of African women activists, it will be welcomed by students of women's studies, African history, and biography, as well as by those interested in exploring the historical background of Nigeria.

BIAFRA : The Horrors of War : The Story of A Child Soldier / Okey

Anueyiagu

Georgia, USA: Brown Brommel Publishers 2020

277p.

9780983738428

$ 40.00 / PB

610gm.

"Biafra: The Horrors of War, The story of a Child Soldier" by Okey Anueyiagu, takes you inside one of the world's almost forgotten wars with devastatingly sordid and haunting imagery. The author conjures a frightening reality that very few people, especially children have ever encountered. With candid details, the author describes in a uniquely dramatic and movie-like style, the perilous mental and physical struggles that he and his people suffered. In his grappling with the pains and horrors of war, he exposes the transformative powers of perseverance, showing how Biafrans turned their pains and sufferings into strengths in endurance. The author, Dr. Okey, using this war, brings to the fore, the fact that despite the odds against the Biafrans; the hunger, the death, and that despite the silence of the world in the perpetration of the holocaust, the pogrom and the genocide, the people of Biafra survived by forging an unbelievable bond that allowed them to overcome the horrific conditions of the war. This book is a compelling classic. A perfectly recalled bitter and wicked account of a people's journey through darkness and a country gone berserk.

This autobiography gives a honest, unashamed glimpse into his family life; the man who runs his family with patience and Yoruban sagacity, the husband who carries his wives along and who is clearly still vulnerable where they are concerned, the lover who cheekily declares that he has never offended any woman, and the father who loves his children so much it would seem he is overcompensating for having missed the love and presence of a father.

Ladipo Ayodeji Banjo, CON (Born 2 May 1934) is a Nigerian Emeritus professor of English language, educational administrator, former vice chancellor of the University of Ibadan, Nigeria as well as former pro-chancellor of Ajayi Crowther University. This autobiography, Morning by Morning, takes on a cultural significance beyond its account of the author's life and times. It is representative of the autobiography as a key document of modern Nigeria's literary culture. The Nigerian autobiography is authorized by the educated middle class in the sense that its author, its subject and its readers belong to the same educated middle class. That class was the modernizing agent that shaped the emergent literary culture of Nigeria and became an organ of national development. So, the autobiographer's personal account of his life and times is valuable material for the professional historian.

Muhammadu Buhari : The Black Pharaoh / Adebayo Adeolu

Ibadan: Kraft Books Limited, 2018

xii, 228p.

Includes Index ; Bibliography

9789789185955

$ 35.00 / PB

342gm.

The book is a biography of the life of Muhammadu Buhari and how history has placed him in the leadership seat of Nigeria twice, amidst the complexity of this nation and its various conflicts and upheavals. It explores how these issues should be solved with good leadership and management of the resources available, which should be a blessing to the nation and not a curse.

This extraordinary story of Buhari's journey captures the causes of conflicts within Nigeria, how they developed and why it is crucial to the country's future that it unites as a single nation.

The Girl Who Said 'I Can' / Eunice Atuejide

Nigeria: Eunice Atuejide, 2019

xii, 260p.

9781794476943

$ 20.00 / PB

278gm.

This is the autobiography of Eunice Atuejide, the 2019 Presidential Flagbearer of the National Interest Party (NIP), a technology driven political party founded and predominantly run by young Nigerians under the age of 40. Eunice is the founder and National Chairman of NIP and currently, the youngest woman, ever, to run for Presidency in Nigeria. She is extremely popular for her non-acceptance of the feminist tag.

Eunice claims with much emphasis that she is not a feminist! The Girl Who Said 'I Can!' is the story of her life from childhood to the 2019 Nigerian presidential elections which she was one of only six women to take part. The book tells of her early days in the slums of Iwaya, her tumultuous relationships, her sojourn through Europe and America and the journey to Nigerian politics. The book captures her life in very simple and relatable highly descriptive stories. It is a must read for Africans in the diaspora and young women, particularly of African descent. Women who have risen from grass to grace will also find Eunice's story compelling. The same applies to those wishing to find their footing in business, politics, career, education and life generally. Eunice Atuejide's story is a very inspiring one. It is highly recommended to everyone looking for a soul lift.

Business/Management

Building A Culture of Ethics : A Practical Guide for Leaders in the African Public, Private and Non-Profit Sectors / Leap Africa

Lagos: Leap Africa, 2009

140p.

9789780889500

$ 40.00 / PB

552gm.

“Building a Culture of Ethics” captures the essential elements of ethical leadership. The success of entrepreneurs and their business hinge on ethical choices. With this book, LEAP Africa provides business leaders with a user’s guide – a toolkit for ethical conduct and a sound compass for navigating the business environment in these complex times. Building an organisation on the foundation of trust and ethical practices is a requirement for long term survival. If that foundation is not carefully managed, organizations can easily get off track and suffer the consequences. This book uses the latest research and established best practices to show management how to develop and then maintain an ethical corporate culture. It is a practical guide to understand the essence of ethical leadership.

Chronicles of the Happiest People on Earth : A Novel / Wole Soyinka
Ibadan: Bookcraft, 2020

xii, 516p. ; 15.5x23.5cm.

9789785795714

$ 120.00 / HB

1010gm.

The novel tells the story of a pact and an alliance formed between four friends, to make an impactful change in their nation. Now in the late stages of adulthood, against an evolving political landscape and a change of government, they drift apart, reunite, navigate complex familial relationships, and increasingly gain recognition in their professions — all the while, their paths interweave with those of prominent religious, community and government leaders, and the tide begins to turn against them, with dire consequences.

It is a dramatic and engaging read, laced with humour and extraordinary characters. The read also provides a realistic perspective on the state of affairs in Nigeria, with a depth of commentary. In Soyinka's expert hands, the apparently disparate strands are woven together with a master story-teller's aplomb. CHRONICLES OF THE HAPPIEST PEOPLE ON EARTH, is a great and unputdownable read from start to finish.

What happens when two elementary school pupils fall in love? What happens when they are torn apart by vicissitudes of life? Is there such a thing as preordained love? Ruth Halima is a story of love, a love that endures times, a love that survives contrary tides, a love that demonstrates faith and a love that unites faiths. It is also a story of innocence and experience of heartbreaks and healing, of family and forgiveness. The author holds nothing back in this free-loving prose that aptly captures the beauty and timelessness of love. Oladisun Delano is a longstanding legal practitioner in Nigeria with a Master's degree in Law from the University of London (The London School of Economics and Political Science). Ruth Halima is his first novel.

Where the Lotus Grows : A Novel / Oyinkansola A. Ogunyinka (Ed) Femi Akinwande

Where the Lotus Grows is a story of what comes next when life deals unexpected blows. What more can precipitate a rude awakening than to lose the valuable elements of life and yet be forced to live through it, as in the cases of Taiwo and Karen in the novel? What more can make life take on a whole new meaning than to experience what can be likened to a nightmare, yet there is no waking up from it, because it is reality? The novel depicts how we tend to self-destruct when we pass through moments of pain and we push people away instead of drawing strength from fellowship with loved ones.

The novel is also a story of the search for meaning, when suddenly one of the protagonists, Karen, discovered that the life she had always valued and revered was actually not what she thought it was. The realization sent her on an adventure that would bring her in contact with another destiny that was in a search of his own. While one would have expected the collusion to be the resolution of the search by the characters, it only opened up another dimension of intrigue in the story.

Lagos, January 1976, six years after the Nigerian Civil War. A new military regime has been in power for six months, but rumours are spreading that a counter-coup is imminent. At an art exhibition in the affluent Ikoyi neighbourhood, Remi Lawal, a Nigerian woman who runs her own greeting-card shop, meets Frances Cooke, who introduces herself as an American art dealer, in Nigeria to buy rare beads. They become friends and over the next few weeks confide in each other about their aspirations, loyalties, marriage, motherhood – and Nigeria itself, as hospitable Remi welcomes the enigmatic Frances into her world. Remi's husband, Tunde, naturally suspects Frances – like any American in Lagos – of gathering intelligence for the CIA, yet she is unconvinced. Cynical about the country's unending instability, and alienated by the shallowness of the city's elite, she willingly shares her views with Frances. But the February 13 assassination of General Muhammed prompts Remi to reconsider one particular conversation with her new acquaintance in a different light. Her discouragement overcome by a reawakened sense of patriotism, she begins to doubt that the bead collector is who she claims to be. With her signature subtlety and wit, Sefi Atta examines a brief but profound friendship, and one Nigerian mother's yearning – amid legacies of conflict and uncertainty – to help build her country from home.

Wings of the Night Sky is an adventure fantasy story. When Omiete answers the call that takes her on a journey to the magical kingdom of Aondo, she is faced with a new reality and purpose – to rescue the Guardian of the Keepers who protect the Kingdom in the sky and ultimately defeat the evil Dadan and his horde of shetani who constantly threaten to plunge it and the real world into darkness. Omiete is faced with mind chilling vampire creatures, cunning spiders, and soul-sucking mbala. As she unites with the keepers and her animal guide, she learns she must master her guide and defeat the darkness. Most of all, she must tackle self-doubt and crippling fear. Omiete finds friendship and innocent love in chaos. Wings of the Night Sky is an imaginative piece for young adults and teenagers who in one way, are faced with life's adventure – telling them there is a will in their fear.

"In Land of Tales, Barth Akpah announces his arrival through years of immersion and emergence from the circling pond of poetry; here is a new voice, passionate emissary of the fluent word, fixed upon the anthems of his land's narrative of malaise, of hypocrisy and strife, of dreams, of nightmares and, in spite of the diversity of conflicts and want, here also is a voice filled with other lovely expectations and anticipation..." -- Remi Raji

A people's situation will not change until they change their mindset, to think differently, as well as their actionset, to act different. Museum of Dreams portrays youthful protagonists caught in between the need to either, as an easy option, perpetuate old societal order of nepotism, redtapism, tribalism and religious bigotry, or to, as a difficult alternative, rise to champion a change of attitude and behaviour. This drama is a soothing blend of poetry at the heart of a metaphorical play that portrays Nigerian-specific illnesses and entrenched anomalies with an intent to move the youth towards a direction of revolutionary change.

‘You see, back there in my room, I was doing some deep thinking. I asked myself ‘Makoji, how best can you serve your people without destroying all you stand for?’ I thought and thought and then the answer came, in a flash, and that is what I am about to share with you, I have decided to turn down the ministerial appointment.”

It is a few hours to the swearing in of ministerial nominees and everyone thinks Dr. Makoji Ejembi has lost his mind, as they search for an urgent cure for him – Our Son the Minister.

This is the winning play from the maiden edition of Beeta Playwright Competition organised by Beeta Universal Arts Foundation. It is a satire of the Nigerian situation and highlights societal culpability in making bad leaders.

Nigerians, since political independence, have been governed by mostly circumstantial/accidental leaders whose knowledge of governance and visions for a great country were substantially limited and often tangential to aspirations for corporate progress. Having desired a fundamental departure from then subsisting, perhaps even impugned, system, or so it seemed, Nigerians in their millions saw in the 2015 elections, the opportunity to change a 'fantastically corrupt' government and the party that had ruled for sixteen years! This book is a collection of the author's essays in the first three years of this administration, trying to address several critical questions concerning the present democratic dispensation of President Muhammadu Buhari, and the emerging challenges for his party's 'change' mantra. Simultaneously, the work inexorably also seeks to contribute to the study of democratisation and to shed light on the politics of transition (particularly within the African context of the transfer of power in a democratic setting.)
