Olympos : Pirate's Town in Lycia – An Archaeological Guide
Istanbul : Homer Kitabevi ve Yayincilik Ltd. Sti., c2007
151 p. : ill. ; 22 cm.
Homer Archaeological Guides : No. 4
975-8293-95-8
$ 39.50

[Noteworthy especially for its cultural assets and natural beauty, the city of Olympos has suffered damage by nature through the centuries accelerated by tourism in the recent years. Therefore, excavations, cleaning, documentation and architecture inventory work of urban plan together with its monuments has been plotted on the topographical map in digital format has been updated. This project was carried out in order to facilitate the foreseen arrangement and restoration programme. The fact they Olympos was not settled by the Turks allowed its medieval urban pattern to be preserved. Being one of the few sites with medieval urban pattern still preserved, Olympos bears importance for the medieval history of the Mediterranean.]

2. Architects- Turkey
$ 75.00

[Who was Mimar Sinan? Ann Pierpont, intrigued by what she had seen of the Ottoman dynasty's premier architect's work, embarked on an expedition to find out more about the man, his design sensibility and the milieu in which he lived. Surprised that this great man's work had not been made accessible to the public with a handy guide to his monuments, Pierpont undertook the project herself and has published a walking guide to Sinan's works in Istanbul and beyond. To make the details of his working life and its challenges more immediate, the author takes on the point of view of the master himself, writing her guide in the format of Sinan's diary, with detailed descriptions of his architectural choices and innovations complementing the diary entries.

For the novice Mimar Sinan enthusiast or for the architectural scholar who would like to know more about the master architect's life and lesser-known structures, this guide is must.]

The Urban fabric and traditional houses of Kirkuk / Suphi Saatci ; Translated by Mehmet Bengu Uluengin
Istanbul : Kerkiit Vakfi iktisadi isletmesi, 2007

200 p. : ill . 30 cm

Publication No : 20, English Language Series: 3

975-6849-19-3

$ 120.00

[The present volume attempts to document the contributors made by Turkomans to the field of residential architecture. As a product of the society that has fostered it, the traditional Kirkuk house has been studied in this book in a scientifically rigorous way.

The similarity between the traditional houses of Kirkuk and those of other Anatolian cities vividly demonstrates the shared values that these people possess.

The traditional Kirkuk house has been shaped by issues centered upon the future, rather than a quest-for-aesthetics based on past forms.]

[This book by Andrew Davison offers an exposition of the Official American ideology of war in the Persian / Arabian Gulf : an ideology whose principal aims have been the manipulation and militarization of US public-political culture and the imperial reassertion of American global power. The book shows how the official war ideology was put in place by successive American presidents in order to justify the wars in Kuwait, Afghanistan, Iraq, and Against the Al Qaeda Islamist movement more generally. It also compellingly displays how these wars, fought primarily over petroleum and political power in the Gulf, were characterized since 1990, in terms of biblical and civilizational significance that mobilized the militarized support of the American public but distorted the contexts and stakes of the conflict in which the US remains violently involved.

Two especially distinguishing qualities of this analysis are, first, that it draws our attention to the pervasive nonsecular character of Presidential rhetoric in the United States; and, second, that it demonstrates the continuity of militant, religious Presidential rhetoric across the spectrum of the American administrations for over two decades, despite the appearance of sharp antagonisms between Democrats and Republicans.]

[This volume comprises the proceedings of the international Symposium on “Islamic Civilisation in Eastern Africa”, held in Kampala, Uganda between 15 and 17 December 2003. The Symposium, jointly organized by IRCICA and the Islamic University of Uganda (IUIU), brought together a wide array of distinguished scholars and researchers affiliated with universities, international organizations, cultural and educational institutions from around the globe. This symposium represented the first large-scale academic event organized by IRCICA in collaboration with the scholarly institutions in the East African region, defined for the purpose of the symposium, to include Somalia, Ethiopia, Djibouti, Eritrea, Kenya, Uganda, Tanzania, Mozambique, Zimbabwe, Rwanda, Eastern Congo, the Comoros, and also South Africa, Yemen and Oman. The chapters specially selected and edited for this volume highlight the major themes that were discussed and analyzed during the symposium, namely: the penetration of Islam in Eastern Africa; Islam and trade in Eastern Africa; Kiswahili and Islamic literature; Islamic education and intellectual development in Eastern Africa; visual issues in Islamic Civilisation: European colonial powers and Islam; and Islam and the contemporary period.]
