This major study explores the spatial history of the Dutch East Indies as an imperial formation between the early nineteenth century and the end of empire. It consists of six in-depth case-studies on pertinent themes such as rural capitalism, indirect colonial rule, border politics, coolie circulations, un-modern nationalism and the beginning of Indonesian independence. These studies are set within a novel theory, which connects local, intra-imperial, transimperial and global history in the format of specific toponomes. As such this book is a contribution both to Indonesian transcultural history and the field of New Area Studies.

This study illustrates the strong relationship between world views and ethical values that are embedded in the lives of a group of people called wong pinter. Some notes on the results of the study show the following points.

First, on the basis of the categories of worldviews studied (classification, causality, space, time, and self-others relation), it is found that the concept of classification is not strong enough. The concept of space is also not sufficiently patterned, in contrast to the findings of the concept of space on the Ainu people, the people of Bali and Yogyakarta. Wong pinter describes the concept of space in relation to the existence of non-human beings. The concept of time is explained in more detail. Some of the views about time are intended to discipline and self-control. On the self-other concept, God becomes the most important element in His status as the Almighty. The self is a common creature that interacts with other humans and non-human beings. Horizontally, the worldview of wong pinter pivots on the ethical elements of the relationship between God's creatures that synergize and create harmony so as to create a comfortable and peaceful life.

Secondly, the basic concept of the worldview guides the wong pinter on the pattern of life both in society, self-control, keeping not to hurt others, and care about the hassles of others. Therefore, they are regarded as people who behave nobly and become role models in society. Thirdly, even though the wong pinter has some abilities that are relatively similar to the abilities of the shamans (common dukun) that have been mentioned by most researchers but the behavior of wong pinter is different from and even contradicts the general characteristics of the dukun. Fourth, this study enriches the study of the concept of space, time, causality, and self-other relationships. This study also explicitly revises the theories that generalize the understanding and characteristics of dukun or wong pinter which has been widely associated with witchcraft, money, and worldly pragmatic goals.

Essential oil is a highly valued product used by a wider and wider scope of people whether they are aware of it or not. Essential oils can be used as a mixture for various products such as beauty, health, and wellbeing. In Indonesia, the number of essential oils producers and sellers has been increasing as more people see the benefit of essential oils they can obtain. However, this phenomenon must be addressed carefully by the essential oil producers in Indonesia as the challenge can be more advanced such as the limited supply and the low quality of essential oils.

"There are not many books on ethics that are currently available, especially in Indonesia. This book comes to fill that gap. A commendable book that researchers should read, especially when there is more and more research on human behavior. It is a stupendous work." – M. Chatib Basri, Executive Director, IBER Minister of Finance of the Republic of Indonesia 2013-2014

"This book addresses an important set of issues in the context of Indonesia, a large developing country in Southeast Asia. Most work on research ethics has originated in the developed world; the strength of this book is that it relates the large international literature to the specific problems which Indonesian researchers are likely to face, especially in the social sciences. It deserves a wide readership both in Indonesia and in other parts of the world." – Anne Booth, Professor Emeritus, SOAS, University of London

"In a world full of fake news, corrupt bureaucracies, and inequitable judgements it is vital that the training of rising generations of social scientists contains thorough grounding in ethics. This volume should be required reading in all teaching programs, and a valuable addition on the desk of all graduates wishing to pursue a career in the social research professions."

– Terence H. Hull, Emeritus Professor of Demography, The Australian National University

“Reading this book is an eye-opening experience. Mayling Oey Gardiner presents novelty by discussing ethics in social science research on current issues such as big data, internet-based research, and environmental research. This book can guide academics and decision-makers to define boundaries and consider the impact of social research.” – Rhenald Kasali Ph.D, Founder Rumah Perubahan, Professor of Management, University of Indonesia.

Social Justice : A Sketch of the West and The Islamic World Experiences / Achmad Munjid (et al.) (Ed) Agus Wahyudi
Yogyakarta: Gadjah Mada University Press, 2021

viii, 248p.

The following book Social Justice: A Sketch of the West and Islamic World Experiences contains a collection of articles that may be read individually, each concerned with the same issues of social justice. The writers in this book originate from the Western and Islamic World's countries. All have agreed to explore and contribute to understanding social justice in each pertinent countries' experiences. The problems being addressed are either descriptive or valuational and, in most cases, are the combination of both. All articles presented in this collection are mainly a reexamination of social justice ideals from the authors' viewpoints and experiences and how the ideals may be applicable and considered relevant to a particular problem faced by the respective countries. As its generic meaning is commonly recognized, all authors see that social justice is the most fundamental virtue, crucially providential, to be the basis of interpersonal relations ordering and establishing and maintaining a stable political society. While the nature, origin, and legitimate application of social justice are a thing that may be debatable, all authors in this book concur with the notion that there is a need to struggle for a just society. This idea may be best developed to respect persons as free, rational agents without ignoring the particularities of its communities' challenges, characters, and identities.
