What is the impact of the 1997 Asian Financial Crisis, Reformasi, or democratization since 1998 and constant economic development in 1990-1997 and 2004-2012 on rural Javanese society? This book has attempted to answer these questions by conducting a 1,000- household socioeconomic survey of six villages in Comal, in the north-coastal area of Java Island in 2012. This book also seeks to locate findings of these fieldworks in the Long historical context in the same area by comparing a 500-household survey in 1990 in the same villages, as well as data from a household survey conducted in the same area from 1903-1905 by the General Syndicate of Sugar-mill Owners of the Dutch Indies.

The sugar industry at Comal used to be an engine of the Dutch East Indies economy at the beginning of 20th century. After the Letter of Intent with the IMF to scrap the government program (TRI) that mobilized land and Labor for sugar production in 1998, the industry ceased to be main drive of the regional economy. No other prominent industry has since emerged in the area, which then saw a decline in population growth. But amidst such stagnation, tremendous changes took place in Comal in 1990-2012.

Notably, as much as 79.6% of the households surveyed were landless. The number in 1903-1905 was 31,6%, and in 1990 was 56.7%. This phenomenon of deagrarianization is also evident in the composition of the occupations of household heads and members. Ecologically serious deforestation took place in 19th century in the region, which led to tight competition for water. Since the 1980s, however, afforestation took place in Java Island-but it did so more in private land, while elderly landless farmers were excluded from former practices of food production and sharecropping. In wet rice production, people now chose seeds by themselves, which included local varieties. Areas planted to rice decreased, as did the use of hired Labor. The real wage rate increased 4-6% per year between 1990 and 2012, vis-a-vis the increase of 0-1% per year in 1903-1990. This is an important reason why afforestation and sugarcane production in dry land developed as a niche industry and have prevailed on the back of Labor-saving technology. Social stratification intensified: the household that kept arable land of 1 hectare more was 1.1% among the surveyed households and owned 37.9% of the land: moreover, trah (lineage group), whence the village head traditionally hailed, kept its status, although some disturbance was reported following Reformasi, similar to the case after independence in 1945. Deagrarization also brought about the development of non-agricultural sectors, especially the tertiary or service sector, and the informal sectors.

This book also shows the vulnerability of society as seen in the high proportion of cereals as staple food in the household food expenditure. The trend toward stratification (or inequality), the decline of hired Labor in sawah cultivation, the wage rate increase or labor productivity increase (with the growing use of Labor-saving technology), the constant increase of outmigration and decrease in population growth, and the persistence of Landlordism all show the unravelling of Javanese society's Agricultural Involution."

The vast ocean and seas swathe an enormous space of our planet and are a crucial part of our existence. Their enigmatic depths, layers, flows, desert of waves, wilderness of water, great wide of rhythm have long been a source of fascination, awe, and fear for mankind. Therefore, it's no surprise that there are so many interests in terms of domination, environment, space frontier, socio cultural, economic, and resources. From earliest recorded history, glory and triumph of Nusantara has depend on sea/ocean/maritime. The existence of Indonesia consists of land, sea/ocean, and air, then moulded within the socio cultural of Indonesian named Nusantara. People of Indonesia believe that the ocean/sea is not unglued between inhabitants, but it brought people together become one nation. The ocean has always been an important source of food, O₂, Energy, and it has also served trade and commerce, adventure and discovery. The sea/ocean have also brought threat to Nusantara, considering the threats are mostly from/through/in the sea/ocean. Nusantara has been always magnetic many countries, it is not only because of natural resources but the geographical setting of Nusantara. Indonesia has to be glory and triumph, the key factor for Indonesia is how to control the waters, meaning Indonesia has to have capability to monitor, detect and respond issues, then utilise the sea/ocean for the interest of Indonesia. Considering economic and security matters are concerned, the need and interest of Indonesia are relatively similar to international community, user States or ships owners which are safety and security of navigation, and there is no potential damage to the environment. But for Indonesia the interest is more prominent and broader because Indonesia has to live with it if anything untoward happens in Indonesia waters. Hence, the interest of Indonesia in terms of navigational routes, straits, and choke points extend beyond economic and security. Indonesian waters is the existence of Nusantara. The book intends to explore and examine the interest of Indonesia vis a vis international laws regulate the ocean/sea and maritime matters.

The anatomy of a culture of abuse of power in Indonesia from the standpoint of criminology and law has an impact on deviations not only on the discretion of power and moral behavior of public officials. In fact, many public officials abuse power by being corrupt or punished, even by severe law, even the perpetrators of power violations continue to commit corruption or it can be seen that there is no clear effect for corruptors. However, it is a wrong system in the life of the nation and state, when public officials who depart from the people do not have the view of life as a nation and state as they should. Therefore, in accordance with the views and suggestions of the author, this nation and state need to return to the joint system of life of the nation and state of Indonesia, namely implementing the points of practice and appreciation of the Pancasila precepts with truth rather than mere rhetoric, because the ideology of the Pancasila state has been built since the country was founded by the founding fathers.

Indonesia's vast legal system is often misunderstood due to its complexity and pluralism. It is an amalgamation of inherited Dutch civic and criminal codes, 76 years of national law development under both authoritarian and democratic administrations, as well as revivals of pre-colonial Islamic and customary adat law. As Indonesia's economy and population continue to grow to among the largest in the world, it has never been more important to understand how the country's laws are evolving. The world's third-largest democracy and home to the largest Muslim population, Indonesia is a law-based nation but faces an array of challenges in the ongoing reformation of the legal system. Tackling corruption, protecting the environment, court reform, and implications of technological change are just a few of the issues.

For 70 years, the Faculty of Law at Andalas University in Padang, West Sumatra, has been producing legal scholars and practitioners to help guide the development of Indonesia's legal system. Compiled by Saldi Isra, this book is a collection of contributions from the Law Faculty's academic staff, who identify and explain some of the major constitutional, political, social and economic issues within Indonesia's changing legal landscape.

Everybody has their hidden parts that often shock their fellow humans. The portrayal of tiny-yet-striking moments in the stories may provide portrayals of the unimaginable human experiences. The children, adolescents, women, and people of different religious or traditional ways of lives in Indonesia may have struggled to live properly. The stories attempt to magnify their experiences with their psychological struggles or sociocultural disputes with the least understanding environment. They are real and here around us. Stories in this book portray what cameras and human eyes cannot capture. Human shocking sides of their lives can only be revealed through stories that dramatize the hard-to-tell experiences.

People respond the unfairness of life in various ways. Their journeys to go through bitterness to reach revelation can be long and winding. The ups and downs of the rocky steeply slippery roads and paths to what the individuals become after the life's storms are often hard to tell. Moans, groans, and even curses that used to be stored in ones' diary entries to release the pains turn up to be poetic pieces of work. The unsaid becomes spoken out, the hidden is come out. Different experiences that people can have are shared from various perspectives. Openness and obscurity collide in their unique ways in poetry.

Poetry has been known as an effective media for expressing people's thoughts, feelings, and concerns. It becomes a means of releasing what the poets cannot say overtly. It can give adventurous journeys to the unexpected moments as the readers follow the words and unleash their imagination.

The year 2022 is the year we all bounce back from a pandemic. We've seen restrictions lifted all around the world and Indonesia so we are slowly back to life before the pandemic. A lot of events are happening globally such as natural disasters, wars that continue between Ukraine and Russia, G-20 meetings, and World Cup 2022. As I am writing this in December, it is only fitting to reflect on what we have accomplished since January 2022. As a nation, our president announced that he will stop our exports of raw nickel to the EU, and this is a bold move. As an academican, we have been working hard to do our research and get published, let's celebrate regardless of our number of publications. As a person, we have managed to keep our interpersonal and intrapersonal relationships in check, so we must be grateful. As an entity, our workplace has also achieved numerous accomplishments that we are proud of.

To face 2023, we do not need to be fully equipped with millions of savings, although that can be an advantage. As such knowledge is given to us, to help us, we are human and need to construct our spirituality and humanity so that we won't be lost in the uncertainty. We stand by our principle to face a fast-changing and uncertain world. We will be far more ready to accept anything given by God by instilling what we had all along, our belief and our ability to be kind.
