Law, Strategies, Ideologies : Legislating Forests in Colonial India
Author : Akhileshwar Pathak

Contents: Introduction. Discourse and practice: ownership of forests in Malabar and Kanara: 1. Traders and legislators: company rule in Malabar, 1792-1807. 2. Discourse to social practices: imposition and abolition of company's rights, 1807-23. 3. Turning owners into encroachers: official discourses on Kanara forests, 1800-60. Managing forests, 1860-82: 4. State, management of forests, and the ideology of conservation. 5. Law, ideology, strategy and practices: early encounters in law making. 6. Forging legal theory. 7. Genealogy of forest provisions: law as register of practices. 9. Law, representation and power: making of the Madras Forest Act, 1882. Conclusion. Reflections on the rule of law. Bibliography. Glossary. Index.

"This book is a well-researched, cogent and lucid study on the making of forest law in colonial India. It provides new perspectives to our understanding of modern law and its origins. Starting with the first piece of legislation under colonial rule in Malabar, 1792, and ending with the making of the Indian Forest Act, 1878, the book breaks new grounds by:

engaging with law as a process in ideological terms;
examining a phase that has so far been neglected; and locating these debates in the wider context of current deliberations.

"Located in the past, the book reflects on the present and shows law as a dossier of strategies abstracted from practices, constantly undergoing refinement and legitimation through the making of legal ideas. The author creates a jargon-free, accessible and smooth narrative, based on wide-ranging archival work from the provincial to the imperial level.

She Comes to Take Her Rights
Indian Women, Property, and Propriety

Author: Srimati Basu

Contents: 1. Women, law, and property in India. 2. Women and property inheritance: scant and slippery footholds. 3. Gifts for alliance: marriage and the flow of goods. 4. "Wo Ayee Hak Lene" ("there she comes, to take her rights"): the dreadful specter of the property-owning woman. 5. Knowing themselves: women's attitudes toward wealth and well-being. 6. Protecting property: gendered identity in the Indian higher courts. 7. Conclusion: property and propriety. Appendices. Bibliography. Index. "Using the contemporary workings of property law in India through the lives and thoughts of middle-class and poor women, this is a study of the ways in which cultural practices, and particularly notions of gender ideology guide the workings of law. It urges a close reading of decisions by women that appear to be contrary to material interests and that reinforce patriarchal ideologies. "The Hindu succession act was passed in India in 1956 theoretically giving Indian women the right to equal inheritance of their parents' self-acquired property, but in the years since, its provisions have scarcely been utilised. Using interview data drawn from middle-class and poor neighbourhoods in Delhi, this book explores the complexity of women's decisions with regard to family property in this context. "This book shows that it is not ignorance of the law, naiveté about wealth or unthinking adherence to gender prescriptions that guides women's decisions, but rather an intricate negotiation of kinship and an optimization of socioeconomic and emotional needs

ISIL Year Book of International Humanitarian and Refugee Law

The ISIL Year Book of International Humanitarian and Refugee Law seeks to focus, at one place, aspects of amelioration of the conditions of victims of forced migration and armed conflicts. Towards this end, the ICRC, the UNHCR and the ISIL have joined together and resolved to bring out the ISIL Year Book annually. The principal Objective of the Year Book is to reflect the developing countries point of view with particular reference to South Asian and South-East Asian regions. The need for a regional focus on these very humane issues has been felt since long. As much of the literature on the subject is western oriented, it is thought necessary to project and disseminate the South and South East-Asian Perspectives.

This inaugural issue of the Year Book contains contributions in IHL and Refugee Law. Issues of IHL include those relating to the protection of cultural property under IHL, IHL with reference to ICC, inter-relationship between armed conflicts and environmental protection and national perspectives of IHL. Contributions in the field of refugee law cover rights of refugees, refugees in the national and international legal framework, the questions of burden sharing and issues concerning displaced persons.

It is hoped that this inaugural volume and those that follow in the coming years will serve the avowed purpose of dissemination of IHL and Refugee Laws for the benefit of the victims of humanitarian crisis through the academic craftsmanship.

Refugees and Human Rights

Social and Political Dynamics of Refugee Problem in Eastern and North-Eastern India edited by Sanjay K. Roy

"In the post-World War II period refugee problem emerged out to be one of the biggest problems before the international community. India has also experienced it at a large scale. Factors such as rise of religious nationalism, ethnicisation of politics, state terrorism, anarchic majoritarianism and above all state's refusal to conform to norms set by the international refugee regime, rendered the refugees stateless and subjects for inhuman treatment. On the other hand, historical forces like religious, linguistic or ethnic nationalism and regional economic disparity continue to generate refugees in the eastern and north-eastern regions of India. Faced with unfriendly state, both in the country of origin and the country of adoption, the refugees struggle to find the ways and means for a healthy living, and wherever possible they make efforts to put up an organised movement for their 'human rights'.

"Written against this contextual backdrop, the articles in this volume are historical, social and political narratives on the major refugee groups in the eastern and north-eastern states of India, like Bengali refugees, Tibetan refugees, Bhutanese refugees, Chakma refugees and Arakanese refugees. The authors explore the genesis of each of these refugee groups and the areas of human rights violation in their treatment. Another feature of the book is the 'critical angle' from which the authors review the shifting, ad hoc and confusing stands of the state machinery in India in the treatment of various refugee streams. The inadequacies of the international regime for the protection of the refugees in India have also been examined. The effort to locate the refugee problem in the frame of international relations theory and globalisation ideology has added analytical flavour to the volume.

Principles of Insurance Law
Author : Dr. Poh Chu Chai

Fifth Edition

In the intervening years since the last edition, there have been significant developments both in the areas of case law and on the legislative front. In Malaysia, a new Insurance Act 1996 was enacted to replace the Insurance Act of 1963 and significant changes were made by the new Act. In the area of case law, many notable decisions have emerged from the courts in Singapore, Malaysia and the United Kingdom. Areas of insurance law effected include the insured's duty of disclosure, subrogation, the formation of insurance contracts and its terms, insurance agents and brokers, the construction of policies and the principle of indemnity, amongst others.

Butterworths Business Law Series – Company Law
Editors : Victor CS Yeo , Pearlie M C Koh

The law relating to companies is often perceived as complicated and based on complex legislation and case law. This has led to parties who deal with, or are involved in the operating of, companies to have little knowledge or understanding of company law. Such a situation is not ideal as companies must operate within the framework provided by the law. Failure to appreciate the basic principles and issues within this framework can only spell danger for the company and those having a business relationship with it.

Company Law aims to present the basic principles of company law, its function and operation in a succinct and practical manner. The book examines the impact of the law on a company's internal affairs, external affairs, expansion and organisation. It also discusses how the law resolves disputes among parties who have competing interests vis-à-vis the company and addresses the major issues in corporate insolvency and its alternatives. It is an invaluable tool for directors, shareholders, managers, creditors and all others who have the opportunity or inclination to work in a corporate environment or deal with companies.

Butterworths Business Law Series – Finance Law
Author : Pauline Gan , Loo Wee Ling

Pub : Butterworths, Singapore Year : 1999 ISBN : 9812360298 Bib : 306pp Price : US$ 35.00

The area of finance is an increasingly complex and specialised one; likewise the law pertaining to finance. Business persons and financiers who seek an understanding of finance law would probably find the law books on the subject both inaccessible and indigestible. Yet it is important that there be available to them a simple and sufficiently comprehensive introductory source of information on the methods of finance and security and how the law affects the manner in which they enter into financing arrangements.

Finance Law attempts to meet this need. The book is written, as far as possible, in lay language and is organised in a way that is meaningful to the business person and financier. The reader is taken through the legal significance of the role of a banker in relation to its customer which is engaged in business to the various methods of financing common to a business. The important considerations and key legal issues arising in entering into a financing arrangement are highlighted. Then, the various possibilities of providing security and the basic legal principles involved in each type of security are delved into. Finally, the remedies available to a financier in the event something goes wrong with the financing arrangement is discussed. Simple illustrations and real life case examples are employed to make the legal principles and issues relevant and easy to comprehend.

Halsburys Laws of Singapore

Written specifically for the legal profession in Singapore by a panel of distinguished local practitioners and academics, Halsbury's Laws of Singapore provides a narrative statement covering all core areas of law and practice. Every effort is being taken by Butterworths Asia to ensure that this work will be the standard reference on matters pertaining to Singapore law – a worthy namesake of its renowned English counterpart.

This begins with the quality of the Editorial Advisory Board. Led by the Honourable Chief Justice Yong Pung How, it comprises some of Singapore's most respected legal authorities. Similar care has gone into the selection of the panel of contributors, each highly experienced in the particular speciality on which he/she writes. Added to this is the full range of editorial support and back-up which has helped to make Butterworths Asia the leader in its field.

Halsbury's is designed to be the first point of reference for the legal practitioner. Therefore, it not only provides thorough and encyclopedic coverage but is also extremely easy to use. Topics are arranged in alphabetical order so practitioners can locate the principles they need quickly. Because Halsbury's defines the law, drawing on legislation, legal definitions, cases and rulings, it is invaluable on those occasions when the practitioner is called upon to deal with areas of the law with which he/she may not be fully familiar. It quickly extends one's knowledge and dramatically reduces the time needed for research.

Investment in Southeast Asia – Policy and Laws
Author : Paul J Davidson , Franca Ciambella

To invest and carry out business in a foreign country, it is essential to have knowledge of the political, economic, legal and social factors affecting the business in that country.

Investment in Southeast Asia – Policy and Laws provides the potential investor and legal adviser with a broad overview of the investment policy and the business laws and investment procedures of select countries in Southeast Asia, in particular, those which form the Association of South East Asian Nations – Brunei Darussalam, Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines, Singapore, Thailand and Vietnam – and Laos. Its purpose is to introduce the investor and legal adviser to the importance of investment policy and to provide an elaboration of those laws and procedures with which they should be familiar when carrying out businesses in the various countries. While the policies, laws and procedures have many similarities there are also numerous differences of which the investor and legal adviser should be aware.

There are altogether 11 chapters in the two looseleaf volumes, and each of the country chapters will generally be organized along the same format for ease of comparison. This looseleaf work will keep business persons and legal advisors up-to-date on the changes in the legal environment in Southeast Asia through bi-annual updates.

Halsburys Laws of India

Hasbury's Laws of India is a new 31 volume encyclopaedia comprehensively covering the main areas of the law in India. Under the guidance of a distinguished Editorial Advisory Board which includes two former Chief Justices, the Chairman of the Law Commission, and the Attorney General, it will provide an authoritative statement of the law, with reference to legislation, cases and other sources. The organising and clarifying of the vast body of Indian law will be of great benefit to practitioners.

Each title is written by an expert or experts in the area, and, in the style of Halsbury's Laws of England, consists of succinct propositions supported by relevant authority.

Laws of Malaysia

(The complete and authoritative reprint of the Laws of Malaysia from Act 1 onwards)

It is pertinent for legal practitioners to tender authoritative text of Acts of Parliament in the court of law. However, it was almost as uphill a task to win a court case as to get the authoritative text of Acts of Parliament. Thus, legal practitioners would be tendering in courts whatever available text of Acts of Parliament they could get hold of. Realising this, in April 1999, the Commissioner of Law Revision, on behalf of the Attorney General of Malaysia and the Government of Malaysia, entered into an agreement with Percetakan Nasional Malaysia Berhad and Malayan Law Journal Sdn Bhd for the publication and distribution of the Laws of Malaysia Series. With that historic agreement, every authoritative Act of Parliament is now being made available; not only to the legal practitioners, but also to all Malaysians; in the Laws of Malaysia series. The authoritative text of Acts of Parliament will be available in booklets and volumes.

The Laws of Malaysia series is a complete reprint of the Laws of Malaysia from Act 1 onwards.

It is a one-stop source of authoritative Malaysia Legislation.

Every Act is updated to include the latest amendment.

New Acts and amendment Acts will be provided in the Annual Service. The Annual service, which will be charged separately, will provide subscribers with updating materials to update their set.

Every Act is available in booklet and looseleaf format which allows regular updating.

Looseleaf format is housed in handsome binders.

All Acts are formatted according to current legislative styling, including shoulder notes.

The Laws of Malaysia series in both formats are prepared for publication by MLJ's experienced team of legal editors, Approved by the Commissioner of Law Revision, and produced to exacting Standards by PNMB.

Customer support is provided by the dedicated MLJ Customer Service team.

Halsburys Laws of Malaysia

From the Foreword:

"Halsbury's Laws of Malaysia is a most welcome addition to our legal literature... this result of the collective collaboration by judges and leading lawyers, both practitioners and academics, [is] an essential and landmark publication forming a repository of Malaysian laws." YAA Tun Dato' Mohamed Suffian bin Hashim, Late former Lord President

Lawyers in Malaysia have been accustomed to relying on Halsbury's Laws of England as a cornerstone of their library, but have had to adapt it to local differences. With time, the divergence between Malaysian and English law has grown, and it will continue to widen. Now Malayan Law Journal is proud to have introduced a Halsbury's Laws specifically written for Malaysia. Several volumes have already been published, and the work will over the next few years grow to cover the core areas of law listed here.

Halsbury's Laws of Malaysia is a 15 volume major work covering key subjects in Malaysian law from Administrative Law to Wills, Probate, Administration and Succession and including a volume of consolidated tables and index. Specially written for Malaysia by leading practitioners and academics, it gives the same depth of treatment for each title as the well-respected Halsbury's Laws of England, providing an authoritative statement of the law with reference to local legislation, cases and other sources. It encompasses the separate laws of East and West Malaysia, and Syariah law, making it the first point of reference on the subjects within its scope. It will be kept up to date by a Current Service so that it will always remain authoritative and reliable.
