Ideals and Realities of Regional Integration in the Muslim World: The Case of the Economic Cooperation Organization / Ejaz Akram
Karachi : Oxford University Press, 2008
xix. 266p,; 23cm
ISBN-13: 9780195476354
$ 35.00

This is a case study of the Economic Cooperation Organization (ECO). It argues that the ECO region has all the necessary elements for regional integration, but that it has not yet reached its goals due to the postponement of its strategic, political and security decisions and the lack of a common denominator of identity and interests. The argument reinforces the notion that regionalism is not only an economic decision but also a political one which may yield economic dividends to the member states.

1. Chinese – Agriculture – Malaysia
2. Chinese – Malaysia – Economic conditions

$ 29.95

Chinese planters, farmers, and labourers have left an indelible imprint on Malaysia's agricultural economy. With great effort and creativity, they opened jungles, converted disused mining land, and transformed the wilderness into rich farms and plantations that grew every crop of economic and social importance. Complementing their efforts, Chinese traders, industrialists and researchers linked agriculture to commerce and agro-based industry. In the process, the Chinese agriculturists and their trading and manufacturing counterparts made valuable contributions not only to national but world development. This book covers all areas of their pursuits, from lowland rice planting to highland flower farming, from small vegetable gardens to large rubber and oil palm plantations, and from trading to downstream agro-based activities. The book combines historical information with original insights from personal interviews to produce a captivating 200-year chronicle of the lives and work of generations of Chinese who tilled the land and used its produce to admirable success.

Big Bang in Capital Market / The Korea Securities Research Institute & The Korea Herald

Seoul: Jimoondang, 2008

192p,; 23cm

ISBN-13: 9788962970043

Insight into Korea Series Vol. 6

$ 29.50

To these questions, Big Bang in Capital Market gives unambiguous answers. The researchers of the Korea Securities Research Institute, who jointly authored the book, argue that it is not investment banking per se that is challenged. What has been found defective is the Wall Street model of investment banking. The authors provide a penetrating analysis of the problems of what they call Wall Street's "free-lunch model" and offer astute policy recommendations for financial regulators.

"Beyond previous more simplistic approaches, this book takes a giant step towards understanding and translating into people-centered policies the actual position and complexity of fish production in Southeast Asian economies. Tackling how fisheries and aquaculture are embedded in local and household economies and linked through dynamic supply chains to more distant, even global markets, the book makes essential policy and analytical recommendations. SEARCA and ISEAS have made a major contribution to the intellectual debate and action agenda for Southeast Asian fisheries."

The Pacific Food System Outlook represents the first regionwide coordinated effort to provide the outlook for the Pacific food system. The food system includes not just production agriculture, but also the whole complex of economic relationships and linkages that tie the regions food consumers to producers. The goal of the Pacific Food System Outlook is to help increase knowledge about the diverse components of this vital segment of the global economy.

This year's report focuses on climate change and its ramifications for the Asia-Pacific food system, arguably one of the most affected sectors in the regions economy. The report identifies the potential public and private sector responses to the daunting future challenges of this issue, the most complex of the issues we have addressed in the 12-year history of the PFSO.

This edited volume containing thirty-five chapters focuses on three main contemporary issues: the phenomenon of "New Indians" in the past five decades, the impact of rising India on settled Indian communities, and the recent migrants. By examining these interrelated aspects, this study seeks to address questions like: what does "Rising India" mean to Indian communities responding to India's rise? Will India pay greater attention to people of Indian origin? And last but not least, will Indians in East Asia identify themselves with their ancestral land or view such identification as problematic?

Will international wars where energy resources play a central role to hold sway over life and death for industrialized nations, or is this a transient phase in the evolution of industrial societies? This book answers this question by tracing the history of energy and conflict from antiquity, through the epic hot and cold wars of the twentieth century, to expected outcome of the war in Iraq. It points the way to the end of wars over control of fossil fuels, and demonstrates why these may be the last major international wars over other resources as well.

This book is a must-read for anyone interested in the future of energy use or international conflict. Readers will find in it an illuminating overview of the sweep of historical events. The book further provides a compelling explanation of how a thorough understanding of the evolutionary direction of these events challenges the convention wisdom that resource wars are endemic to the nature of industrial society, thus offering a fresh view on one of the most important challenges of our time.
