Thinking About Hong Kong's Past: A History of 7,000 Years (DVD)
Hong Kong, Centre for Chinese Archaeology and Arts, The Chinese University of Hong Kong, 2010
DVD
120 mins
English, Cantonese & Mandarin Language
$ 20.00

This programme will bring you the most beautiful finds unearthed from Hong Kong in the last half century. It will also recapture the seven thousand year long history of Hong Kong. In the last ten years since 2001, the filming team has worked at many sites and museums, including those in the Pearl River Delta and Hainan. Moreover, the filming team visited Beijing to film the world's oldest jade earrings from the site in Inner Mongolia.

We have interviewed Professor Jao Tsung-I, a renown Sinologist in his nineties, in addition to more than thirty scholars from the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences, Peking University, and Hong Kong, etc.

This programme is about the history of Hong Kong written by Hong Kong people in the twenty first century. Even if you were born or grew up here, it is the history of Hong Kong you have never heard of or read from history books. The seven thousand year long history of Hong Kong reappears in this programme.

The Old Shanghai A-Z / Paul French
Aberdeen, Hong Kong: Hong Kong University Press, 2010
252p. ; 21cm.
ISBN-13: 9789888028894
$ 25.00

This richly anecdotal guide to every street in Shanghai details many landmarks and stories associated with its best known avenues. A definitive index to the street names of Shanghai, some of which have disappeared or been removed, allows historians, researchers, tourists and the just plain curious to navigate the city in its pre-1949 incarnation, through the former International Settlement, French Concession, and External Roads Area with a detailed map and alphabetical entry for every road.

The book is lavishly illustrated with old advertising, images and postcards of the streets and businesses, the bars and nightclubs, the people and characters of old Shanghai bringing alive the city in its previous heyday as the Pearl of the Orient. The Old Shanghai A-Z should become the standard reference work as well as being an easy-to-use guide for researchers and visitors looking to recapture the glamour and uniqueness of old Shanghai.

Thistle and Bamboo: The Life and Times of Sir James Stewart Lockhart / Shiona Airlie
Aberdeen, Hong Kong: Hong Kong University Press, 2010
xxii. 261p. ; 22cm.
ISBN-13: 9789888028924
Echoes: Classic of Hong Kong Culture and History
$ 25.00

Colonial civil servant, Confucian scholar, and collector of Chinese art, Sir James Stewart Lockhart spent more than forty years in Hong Kong and Weihaiwei — the former British leased territory in northern China. His career reflects tension and upheaval in the emerging colony of Hong Kong and in a China rapidly giving way to civil war. In her vivid biography of Stewart Lockhart, Shiona Airlie presents a portrait of an imperial official who fought against racism, strove to preserve the Chinese way of life, and was treated by Chinese mandarins as one of their own.

Portraits From Above: Hong Kong's Informal Rooftop Communities / Rufina Wu & Stefan Canham
Hong Kong: MCCM Creations, 2009
275p. ; 25cm.
ISBN-13: 9789889984380
$ 49.50

Self-built settlements on the roofs of high-rise buildings have been an integral part of Hong Kong's history for over half a century. Rooftop structures range from basic shelters for the disadvantaged to intricate multi-storey constructions equipped with the amenities of modern life. Rufina Wu (Canada) and Stefan Canham (Germany) utilize the tools of an architect and the tools of a photographer to document rooftop communities on five buildings located in older districts in the Kowloon Peninsula, slated for redevelopment by the Urban Renewal Authority of Hong Kong. Texts records of the residents' stories, measured drawings of each distinct rooftop structure, and high-resolution images of the domestic interiors of more than twenty households offer an unprecedented insight into the everyday life on Hong Kong's rooftops.

The Diary and Letters of Dr. Hu Shih / Peking University Library
Singapore: Gale Asia, 2010
372p. ; 210mm x 275mm
ISBN-13: 9789814272247 (HB)
$ 300.00

The Diary and Letters of Dr. Hu Shih (Peking University Library Collection) contains Hu Shih's diary from his Chengzhong School days, an incomplete diary entry of Hsu Chi-Mo (Xu Zhimo) copied by Hu Shih, 116 Chinese letters, and 141 English letters. Among these, Hu Shih's diary at Chengzhong School is his earliest one discovered so far, dating back to 1906, a time when he started to receive modern education and encounter modern thoughts. Considering that most of Hu Shih's letters have already been published, the letters included in this book are even more valuable. Apart from the letters written by Hu Shih and his family members, this book also includes letters written by famous scholars and important figures at that time, such as Jiang Menglin and Fu Sinian. The English letters were mostly from the years when he was ambassador to the United States, which, from another angle, tell us something about his communication with western scholars and his strenuous effort to support China's war against Japan.

In the 1920s and 1930s, John Dewey, Bertrand Russell, Albert Einstein, David Bohr, Rabindranath Tagore, Guglielmo Marconi, George Bernard Shaw, Sir Charles Spencer Chaplin Jr., Lanngevin Paul etc visited China one after another. Those visitors were fascinated by eastern culture, and had great interests in the social transformation of China. There was also someone like John Dewey who visited China because of his affection to his students. The reasons of their visits were various, and mostly were for lectures, or stopped over as a tourist. On their way to the other countries many of them just passed through. And Shanghai was always their first stop in China.

Marco Polo, an Italian traveler, had stayed in China for 17 years in the 13th century. Marco Polo wrote his memoir of China in his book, The Travels of Marco Polo, which became the first book that introduced China to the Western world. The book instilled in many Europeans an interest in the Orient, and had a strong impact on the discovery of new travel routes in the world. Marco Polo also became a significant representative of early cultural exchanges between the East and West.

Embracing Destiny in China: 17 People From Across the Globe Who Have Found Their Destiny in China / Lu Yang et al

Beijing: New World Press, 2010

232p. ; 24cm.

China-World Cultural Exchange Series

ISBN-13: 9787510406782

$ 19.50

This is the third collection that follows two previously published books entitled, Living in China and Dreaming Big in China. Seventeen people have been interviewed and featured here because of their remarkable yuan or "predestined relationship" with China, and each of them cherishes their yuan. In this book, they recount their stories with China and the Chinese people. These stories are the most direct and concrete explanations of the ancient phenomenon of yuan. Some have permanent remained in China, others have simply lived in China for many years and some for only a temporary amount of time. Regardless, their connections are deeply rooted to the Chinese people and they consider China their second homeland. Their unusual life experiences and thoughts give us a better understanding and feeling about yuan, and are deeply moving.

Beijing: Foreign Languages Press, 2009

207p. ; 24cm.

ISBN-13: 9787119059679

$ 22.00

This book is a wonderful collection of original drawings and writings about Beijing during the past 60 years. The author is a typical senior who grew up in a big family in a traditional courtyard house (a siheyuan in mandarin). As an ordinary citizen he carefully observed and recorded the life and customs around him, and vividly describes his childhood family life, schooling, love, marriage and work. The pictures reveal the changes in customs, attitudes, and historical figures as well as capture the changes in scenery and architecture in Beijing since the founding of the People's Republic of China in 1949

This book chronicles the evolution of Fulbright Korea, from its humble beginnings in 1950, through its contributions to Korea in the aftermath of the Korean War and through rapid industrialization, to its development into one of the most active Fulbright Commissions worldwide today. In these pages you will find more than a mere history of Fulbright; this book is a direct reflection, in many ways, of the history of modern Korea. It offers a decade-by-decade account of changes in the political and social climate of Korea, documenting how Fulbright Korea has progressed and expanded in response to these changes, always striving toward the fulfillment of the mission of the Fulbright Program.

Samurai Tales is about the legendary men from the samurai class who fought for the helm of power in the 19th century Japan. In an internecine war that was unique in its scope and character, Hillsborough give us a rare and fascinating look at the men who were willing to sacrifice their lives for their ideals, their leaders and their country. Names like Sakamoto Ryoma, Saigo Takamori, Kondo Isami, and Katsu Kaishu, whose achievements and adventures have been recounted here, became samurai legends in this pivotal era in Japanese history. These are stories of courage, honor, fidelity, disgrace, fate, and destiny set in the bloody time of political change and social upheaval in the final years of the shogun.

At Home in Japan tells a story of author Rebecca Otowa's personal journey from suburban California to rural Japan, where she marries into a traditional Japanese family and becomes the steward of a household that has lived in the same farmhouse for the past 350 years.

The book traces a circular path, from the details of life in the house and village, through relationships with family, neighbors, and the natural and supernatural entities with whom the authors shares the shares. Otowa then reflects on her inner life, touching on some of the pivotal memories of her time in Japan, the lessons in perception that Japan has taught her, and the ways in which she has been changed by Japan.

Otowa poignantly recounts her chosen life, her misgivings, her compromises, and her mistakes. She takes us inside a social circle that is virtually unseen and unknown to outsiders. By living close to nature in a traditional manner, the author discovers and relates many insights into the Japanese character and changing way of life.

This book of interviews with Professor Wang Gungwu, published to felicitate him on his 80th birthday in 2010, seeks to convey to a general audience something of the life, times and thoughts of a leading historian, Southeast Asianist, Sinologist and public intellectual. The interviews flesh out Professor Wang's views on being Chinese in Malaya; his experience of living and working in Malaysia, Singapore and Australia; the Vietnam War; Hong Kong and its return to China; the rise of China; Taiwan, Japan and India's place in the emerging scheme of things; and on the United States in an age of terrorism and war. The book includes an interview with his wife, Mrs Margaret Wang, on their life together for half a century. Two interviews by scholars on Professor Wang's work are also included, as are his curriculum vitae and a select bibliography of his works.

What comes across in this book is how Professor Wang was buffeted by feral times and hostile worlds but responded to them as a left-liberal humanist who refused to cut ideological corners. This book records his response to tumultuous times on hindsight, but with a keen sense of having lived through the times of which he speaks.

Japanese Immigrants and Investments in North Borneo / Yutaka Shimomoto

Sabah, Malaysia : The Sabah Society, 2010

vi + 212 pp.

978-967-5692-00-0 (HB)

$ 52.00

This book highlights an unknown aspect of Japanese immigrants and investments in Sabah (then North Borneo) during the pre-war period. Although Sabahans know of the existence of the Japanese presence on the east coast, the details remain virtually unknown. Here the author presents previously unpublished historical facts on the Japanese immigrants and investments.

The focus is on the migration policy of the Japanese government and the "South-seas fever" after World War I. The Japanese government encouraged migration to reduce the labour force in the saturated domestic labour market. However, with the restrictive measures taken by various recipient countries of Japanese immigrants, North Borneo became one of only two feasible destinations in the late 1930s. The author also describes episodes in neighbouring Sarawak and the Philippines to enable the readers to visualize the Japanese government's change in migration policy. The "South-seas fever" among the Japanese conglomerates and individuals in the 1910s and the financial support of the Governor-General's Secretariat of Taiwan helped accelerate Japanese investments and migration to North Borneo.

The author touches upon the Japanese investments in rubber, coconut, and abaca plantations as well as the fishing industry on the east coast which contributed to the economic development of North Borneo. With the Japanese invasion of China, the colonial governments in Southeast Asia became cautious about receiving Japanese investments and immigrants; however, the North Borneo Government did not take any restrictive measures until early 1941 due to the Japanese contribution to the economy. This liberal policy encouraged the Japanese government to invest in North Borneo and strategically secure important goods and facilities for the coming Pacific War.

1. Chinese in the Philippines
2. Chinese in the Philippines: History – Nineteenth century
3. Chinese in the Philippines – Economic conditions
4. Chinese Filipinos – Philippines

$ 15.00

Switching identities, believing in different religions, dispersing family members – these were but some of the flexible strategies that prominent Chinese merchants in late nineteenth and early twentieth-century Manila employed to take advantage of or evade policies created by colonial authorities. In reconstituting individual biographies and family histories, Chu demonstrates not only how people in their everyday lives negotiate and utilize power but also how a micro-historical approach to the study of Philippine history can enrich knowledge of the country's society and culture.

ISBN-13: 9786046303800 (HB)

$ 60.00

From the bumpy roofs of houses in the "thirty six guild streets" to temples with old curving roofs hidden within the densely populated areas: from public buildings adapted from buildings of similar function in metropolitan France to villas built in diverse styles from various French localities; we take a stroll back to the old days to find traces of the great changes Hanoi underwent as it entered modern times. Photos taken during the 19th century and postcards issued at the beginning of the 20th century help us visualize an old Hanoi that bears the appearance of an ancient urban area in the Orient but also quickly adopted Western architectural styles to become a multifaceted city as it commemorates its one-thousand-year anniversary.
