From Introduction:

There are two main parts to this book. The first part showcases 200 paintings including the 70 selected for the exhibition with the main text written by Lim Chong Keat in the lead and interspersed with articles and reviews on Sui Hoe written by various persons over the years. The last part is a chronological biography put together after many pleasurable hours conserving with Sui Hoe and enlivened with photographs from Sui Hoes own collection.

The essays in this volume address a diverse range of issues in China's narrative art and visual culture mainly from the Ming dynasty (1368–1644) to the present. These studies attend to the complex ways in which images circulate in pictorial media and across boundaries between 'high art' and popular culture—images in paintings, prints, stone engravings and posters, as well as in film and video art. In addition, the authors examine the roles of ancient exemplary stories and textual narratives, as well as their reiteration in the visual arts in early modern and modern social and political contexts. The volume is divided into three sections, Representing Paradigms, Interpreting Literary Themes and Narratives, and the Medium and Modernity. While the essays in each section deal with concerns in the field of China's art history, an editors' introduction serves to position the topic of narrative art and to introduce definitions and genre issues which run through the book. As a whole, the volume invites reflection on the intrinsic nature of narratives and their pictorial lives, and presents new research which challenges established views and paradigms.

The Urbanites / Almond Chu
MCCM Creations, Hong Kong 2013
196p.;
9789881521835
$ 45.50 / HB

THE URBANITES is a collection of local photographer Almond Chu's portrait photographs. What's interesting about Almond's photographs? He says, "Sometimes I see myself when I am making portraits: I discover that the subjects and I share some a common character, and I see my own shadow in them as if part of me exists within them. At other times, I intentionally portray my own self in the subject, and people who know me well sometimes read me in the images. This seemingly bizarre experience makes my portraits interesting and exemplifies the style of my portraiture."

Reared and groomed by dedicated owners for participation in pageants, ornamental chickens, including the impressive Malaysian breed of Ayam Serama, project a natural and seemingly effortless charisma rivaling that of human models. Ernest Goh's award-winning portraits capture the full range of these beautiful birds' personalities; puffed chests, ruffled plumage, bowed heads and all. By turns provocative, humorous and surprising, Cocks will move you to view our humble feathered friends in an entirely different light.

Singapore Biennale 2013: If The World Changed /

Singapore Art Museum, Singapore 2013

9789810780265

$ 55.00 / HB

Singapore Biennale 2013 features the works of 82 artists and artist collectives from the Southeast Asian region and beyond, with a 27-member curatorial team who, with their combined expertise, have harnessed the unique energies of Southeast Asia to shape the region's premier contemporary art exhibition. The focus of the Biennale also goes beyond the major metropolitan centres to present a greater diversity of artistic practices that reference urgent and key issues in our contemporary world.

The fully illustrated catalogue features curatorial write-ups on each of the 82 artworks, an introduction by art historian T. K. Sabapathy and an essay by Amitav Acharya. Shedding light on the collaborative curatorial process, the publication also includes creative textual and visual responses by the 27 curators that offers a cross-section of their diverse perspectives, strategies and approaches in curating "If the World Changed"
