This book is a collection of speeches and lectures delivered by political luminaries, practitioners and noted scholars on South Asian security at the Institute of South Asian Studies, National University of Singapore.

It offers interesting insights on the emerging security dynamics of South Asia. The issues covered are highly topical and include analyses of the conflict in Afghanistan, counter-terrorism in Pakistan, conflict management in Kashmir, post-conflict restructuring in Nepal and militarization in Asia. Some of the chapters provide in-depth analyses of the regional power politics and competing foreign policy priorities, with particular emphasis on India, the major regional power. India's foreign policy and defense relations with Southeast Asia, China and Russia are covered in detail in individual chapters.

Encountering Islam : The Politics of Religious Identities in Southeast Asia / Hui Yew-Foong (Editor)

This volume seeks to introduce and deepen the understanding of Islam and its role in politics as encountered in different national and transnational contexts in Southeast Asia, eschewing the neo-orientalist approach that has informed public discourse in recent years. In Encountering Islam, the book lingers beyond the summary moment and reflects on the multiple impressions, suppressions and repressions, whether coherent or incoherent, associated with Islam as a socio-political force in public life. To this end, it is not adequate simply to represent the divergent identities associated with Islam in Southeast Asia, whether embedded in state-endorsed orthodoxy or Islamic movements that contest such orthodoxy. It is also important to examine religious minorities in political contexts where Islam is dominant and Muslim communities in national contexts where they are minorities. By situating these religious identities within their larger socio-political contexts, this volume seeks to provide a more holistic understanding of what is encountered as Islam in Southeast Asia.

India – Japan Relations : Drivers, Trends and Prospects / Arpita Mathur

Singapore: S. Rajaratnam School of International Studies, 2012

130p. ; 23cm.

ISBN-13: 9789810728038
RSIS Monograph No. 23
$ 40.00 / PB

India's relationship with Japan has grown rapidly in the post-Cold War era. Though China's rise is the primary factor, the warmth of the historical relationship and current expectations of mutual gain are also key drivers. The author analyses the strategic, economic and other dimensions of the relationship and shows how its full potential can be realised.

Climate Change, Migration and Human Security in Southeast Asia / Lorraine Elliot
(Editor)

Singapore: S. Rajaratnam School of International Studies, 2012 viii. 124p. ; 23cm.

ISBN-13: 9789810728021

RSIS Monograph No. 24

$ 50.00 / PB

200 gm.

The proposition that migration as a result of climate change has consequences for regional and global security has become prominent in public discourse over the last few years. Yet much of that debate in the Southeast Asian context is not sufficiently well informed by current knowledge on the demographics of migration and the kinds of choices that people and communities make about mobility; nor does it pay adequate attention to the human insecurities that result from climate change in general and climate change-induced migration in particular. This volume seeks to overcome some of those limitations, drawing on insights from international relations, international law, demography, public policy, geography, environmental studies and climate science. It shows how a human security approach can sustain the tactical attractions of a security discourse in bringing urgent attention to a problem such as climate change and migration, while also redirecting security policy to protecting and empowering those who are most vulnerable to the threats of climate change.

Pax Sinica : Geopolitics and Economics of China's Ascendance / Y.Y. Kueh

Hong Kong: Hong Kong University Press, 2012

xxi. 437p. ; 24cm.

ISBN-13: 97898888083824

$ 45.00 / HB

796 gm.

The book confronts the popular conjecture of a Pax Sinica emerging to replace Pax Americana in the wake of global financial crisis. It argues that by virtue of its overwhelming economic, technological and military clout, US hegemony will continue to prevail, though increasingly less coherently, as China's ascendance as a global power accelerates. The argument is underpinned with analysis of different junctures in China's trajectory towards the status of economic giant, from the tacit creation of the "Greater China" growth triangle and ordeal of the Asian Financial Crisis, through the breakthrough with China's membership in the WTO and the subsequent large-scale realignment of productive forces in the Asia Pacific region. A chronological approach is combined with topical analysis, focusing in particular on the interplay between economic imperatives and geopolitical dynamics.

Journalists are always taught to cover the news, and not become the news. On April 21, 2005, Straits Times correspondent Ching Cheong broke that rule: he crossed the border into Shenzhen to investigate a manuscript of the memoirs of the late Chinese leader, Zhao Ziyang. That was the start of his nightmare. The next day, he was detained in isolation for more than three months, as the Public Security Bureau tried all manner of ways short of physical violence to get him to confess to spying for Taiwan. He was later "tried" in a Beijing court, his 20,000-word so-called "confession" the only evidence the State Prosecutor produced, and was summarily convicted of spying for "foreign powers" and sentenced to five years' jail. His book re-counts in detail the emotional turmoil he felt at being "betrayed" by his desire to see China and Taiwan peacefully reunified, the tortuous circumstances under which he was compelled to write a "confession" of his alleged crime, and his struggle to come to terms with what he – albeit unwittingly – brought upon himself. He decided to write it "to contribute in a small way to wiping out the soil that produces such miscarriages of justice" in China, to make sure that he "had not gone to jail for nothing". For the international legions of human rights activists, Ching's Ordeal describes, in very ordinary terms, how the Chinese authorities – or any other undemocratic regime – use "logic" and forms of mental torture to obtain "confessions". It shows up, without drama, the huge distance China needs to cover to become a country where the rule of law is not subject to politics. Most of all, it shows the "patriots" in the Chinese diaspora the gradient they have to walk to separate communist dictates from a culture of which there is much to be proud. Ching puts it simply: "I hope through the recounting of my story to bring attention to the situation of China's judicial system, so that we can together build a country that respects and protects the rights of a quarter of the world's population."

Sino – Japanese Relations : Rivals or Partners in Regional Cooperation? / Niklas
Swanstrom & Ryosei Kokubun (Editors)

Singapore: World Scientific Publishing Co. Pte. Ltd., 2013

xv. 223p. ; 24cm.

ISBN-13: 9789814383554

$ 89.00 / HB

572 gm.

Sino-Japanese relations have been on the mend since Shinzo Abe assumed the Japanese Prime Minister's office in September 2006. His visit to China in October 2006 and the reciprocal visits of Chinese Prime Minister Wen Jiabao in April 2007, and President Hu Jintao in May 2008, facilitated the further thawing of bilateral relations under the framework of "mutually beneficial relationship based on common strategic relationship." A substantial number of additional events have indicated the continuation of the positive trend in the strengthening of the bilateral relations.

However, several issues continue to obstruct the building of long-term confidence between the two Asian giants. Despite the overall improved relations, there is very little structural thinking about how to move the Sino-Japanese relations to the next level and how to institutionalize security dialogues at the regional and international level.

This book provides an overview of the current situation and also gives suggestions on what is needed to move beyond the haphazard level of cooperation in Northeast Asia, especially as the six-party talks seem to have broken down. It focuses on Chinese and Japanese perceptions of the bilateral situation, and the potential of, and need for, multilateral structures in managing the future.

Series on Contemporary China Vol. 32

$ 76.00 / HB

482 gm.

The aim of the book is to provide readers with an understanding of the important and emerging political, economic and social trends and challenges in East Asia in the coming years.

There is urgency to conduct such a review of the state of East Asian affairs as the international and regional environments seemed to be headed towards greater uncertainty. At the international level, the European Union (EU) continues to grapple with its debt crisis with no clear resolution in sight. On the other side of the Atlantic, the US is gearing up for its presidential and congressional elections that will take place towards the end of 2012. The outcome of these elections would have implications for America's relations with countries in East Asia, particularly China. Already, in the run-up to these elections, potential candidates have whipped up anti-China sentiments or even called for tough anti-China measures to appeal their respective constituencies...

Japan faces significant challenges in both traditional and non-traditional areas of national security policy as the economic resurgence of China and the loss of US hegemonic clout significantly transform the strategic landscape of the Asia-Pacific region. How is Japan coping with this new global and regional politico-security environment? What strategic moves has it taken to best position itself for the future to maximize its global and regional influence? More importantly, how is Japan perceived within the region by traditionally close regional partners such as the US and Australia, by supporters in Southeast Asia, and by new competitors — most prominently China and India? What international role do these nations wish Japan to play? In this comprehensive volume, these crucial questions are explored in-depth by a group of scholars both distinguished and diverse.

In Burma, the Rohingya have been abused, excluded and denied the most basic of human rights, including citizenship. As refugees in Bangladesh and beyond, they have been neglected, exploited and forced to exist in the darkest margins of society.

Persecuted and stateless, they are the unwanted and the unwelcome.

Political Integration Policies of the Thai Government toward the Ethnic Malay Muslims of the Southernmost Thailand (1973-2000) demonstrates how the Thai government managed the problem of ethnic Malay-Muslim separatism in the southernmost provinces of the country. It traces the Thai government's policies, the reactions of the ethnic Malay-Muslims, and the determinants of both the government policies and the ethnic Malay-Muslims' responses during the democratization period in Thailand that began in 1973. It stresses the importance of political rules and institutions that shaped both the government's approaches and the responses from the ethnic Malay-Muslims.

Many of the stories here have never been told before, including details about the 10 days Ressa led the crisis team in the Ces Drilon kidnapping by the Abu Sayyaf in 2008. Now it forms the powerful narrative that glued together the social networks – both physical and virtual – which spread the jihad virus from bin Laden to Facebook.

Terrorism had been around long before the 9/11 attacks gave it the shock value it has today and all indicators suggest that it will be there long after groups like Al Qaeda are history.

In an age where subjective and arbitrary notions of what is or is not terrorism reign supreme and when states have sought to crush guerrillas and freedom fighters in the name of countering terrorism, this book strives to find answers to key questions that the people in Pakistan and elsewhere in the world have about radicalization and terrorism in Pakistan.

This is the first publication on the racial violence that was unleashed by organized thugs against ethnic Indians at Kampung Medan, Petaling Jaya which started on March 8, 2001. For this racial violence to happen more than thirty years after "May 13" is a scandal and an indictment of Malaysia's modern day institutions which are still steeped in racism and racial discrimination.
